October 18–25, 1995

Galleries

Doggie Style Gallery

543 E 6th Street between Aves A and B (228-6367). Thu–Sat noon–6pm and by appointment.

During the last East Village art boom, it was known as the B-Side Gallery. These days, it's been cut in half and repainted, and artist Rick Prol is calling it Doggie Style, which is also the name of his first show. (The title tells more about the relaxed, non-Soho atmosphere of the place than it does about the theme of the art.) This exhibition presents the work of more than 20 artists, introducing some new names and revisiting familiar ones (such as Crash, Ellen Birkenbilt and Mike Bidlo). The pieces, like the gallery, are small, but not without impact. Doggie Style runs through November 11; after that, watch for announcements of future Prol projects.—Nancy Sidewater
